We may receive commissions for purchases made at our chosen links. Go San Diego makes claims that are enough to make a person skeptical: Save up to 55 percent at the many attractions it advertises. It almost sounds too good to believe, so we set to learn the truth about the smartphone discount pass. We poked, prodded, clicked and looked at the fine print. We've even done a spreadsheet to calculate savings, all so you don't need to. This will help you find out if this is a good idea for your holiday. If you're prone to losing things (or forgetting to take them on a trip), skipping may not be for you. Lost passes are not subject to change or refund. Think of Go San Diego as a volume discounter. Season ticket providers negotiate with local tourist attractions at discounts and sell them as passing packages. You can choose from different types of Go San Diego: The basic version (called all-inclusive) covers all the proposed checkpoints at a fixed price, valid for the maximum number of days you choose. Buy more days, and a pass is more expensive. Build-your-own pass offers fewer attractions and is good for 30 days after first use, but you can only choose the attractions you want to visit. The more you choose, the bigger the discount. You can also choose from pre-built packages for the most popular attractions. California Explorer Pass, which gives you the option of 3, 4 or 5 attractions for one price. It's easy to use. Just take your printed or mobile Go Pass to any San Diego included attraction, present it in the ticket window, and you're in. Once it's used for the first time, skipping is good for the number of days you've chosen, but they need to be consecutive days. If you miss it because you're tired, you won't get a refund or extension. With the exception of a rare multi-day pass, you can visit each attraction only once. The pass will probably save you some money, but for most people it won't be as much as the ads claim. The only way to find out for sure: Add it. Only you know what attractions you want to visit and how many you are willing to rush them to pack all inch Quick Way to get all the prices you need for this is to use the Go Select page where they show current prices. Go San Diego will save money if you: Buy a three to five day pass and visit all the great ticket attractions (SeaWorld, Legoland, San Diego Zoo, and Safari Park) or visit three or four of the smaller attractions a day. Get realistic about how much you can do. Great attractions each take a full day and some from each other. For other attractions that take less time, there can be considerable travel time to get from one to the other. If you pack your schedule too tightly and get too pooped to finish them all, your savings will plummet. Grouping Bandwidth: You can use the rest of the trip to other things. If you scored all the activities that are the main things to do in San Diego in three days, you could save nearly 40 percent, but you'd be so rushed, you wouldn't have much time to enjoy them. Expand this to a smarter five days and you'll save about 20 percent. Take seven instead, don't do anything else, and the savings fall to just 5 percent. Of all of California's most popular tourist destinations, San Diego has most attractions that charge high entry fees, with five of the dozens of most popular attractions charging more than $50 per adult ticket, and three others requiring an entry fee. These are the attractions of why most people visit the city, and if you plan to make them all, you will probably use your passage a lot. However, not everyone wants to see the best attractions, and these ideas can help you understand it all. Some of the attractions offered may not interest you: For example, if you don't like going to a museum that occupies about 20 attractions off the list. If you don't like excursions, that eliminates another half a dozen. If the list of things you want to do becomes too small, the pass may not save you money. Still, some people say he introduced them to enjoy activities they may not have found on their own. And once you break even, you'll save on every little thing you do afterwards. Only longer passes include SeaWorld (three days or more). Take a closer look at this long list: You'll find that some attractions are not in San Diego but in Anaheim, Orange County or even Hollywood. You will have to go there to enjoy them that may or may not be part of your vacation plan. A hate museum guided by a tour avoiding a camper who isn't going to leave San Diego remains with about two dozen attractions to choose from. Some attractions require a booking: After buying a pass, you may need to place an order for some tours. Read all the details so you're not disappointed. You can't buy a Go San Diego pass at the ride's ticket offices, so you need to plan ahead. But not too far away. You can refund unused full refund passes within a year of purchase, but why not just wait until you know about your travel dates? You can buy a pass online on the Go City website. Buy a digital pass and print it out at home or download it to your smartphone. Thank you for let us know! This historic oceanfront amusement park brings out a child in anyone, with carnival rides, arcade games, hot dogs on sticks... the list continues. Do something good for your inner 10-year-old boy and ride a wooden roller coaster or spend all your quarters on the Skee-Ball. You can play, eat, shop and exercise in myriad ways in this sunny oasis Robinson-Rose House overlooks the central square, the center of social activism. Casa de Estudillo is a great place to stay in Estudillo. Another highlight is the Seeley Stable, where you can marvel at the old old man wagons, an ox-drawn cart and a massive two-car charter. A fun stop is Racine k∓ Laramie, which shows you what a tobacco store looked like in 1869. TripSavvy uses cookies to provide you with a great user experience. White rhinos, Sumatran tigers and California condors are among the 3,500 inhabitants of this renowned safari park, an extension of the San Diego Zoo's 1,800 acres. Most animals live in free-range enclosures, allowing them to interact the way they would in the wild. In addition to exhibits such as Lion's Camp, the park also has a petal and absentee where visitors can feed lorikets by hand. Special events range from tram trips and lightning tours to animal shows such as Cheetah Run, which provides a close view of the cheetah sprint at full speed - around 70mph. Balboa Park is home to a wide range of entertainment venues such as the San Diego Zoo (which is exponentially better than the Central Park Zoo), a pavilion with free live-pipe organ concerts during the warmer years, the Old Globe Theater, museums such as the Museum of Photographic Art and the Ruben H. Fleet Science Center and the world's first domed IMAX Theater. Many of the credit card offers that appear on the site are from credit card companies from which ThePointsGuy.com receives compensation. No one will dispute the fact that Balboa Park is the unmistakable gem of San Diego' 1,200 acres of greenbelt, culture, recreation and attraction. It is a gathering place for the Community of San Diego, which is enjoyed by all citizens, of all backgrounds and economic backgrounds. Of course, we all know about the big museums and the Old Globe Theater, but Balboa Park is much bigger than that. Everyone has their favorite place in Balboa Park, but there are a few famous and lesser-known places to discover. 01 of 10 Address: El Prado, San Diego, California, U.S. The main main mainline of Balboa Park, El Prado is the center of a park where the public gathers and walks to enjoy the wonderful beauty and architecture of Balboa Park. El Prado, accentuated by Spanish buildings influenced by the Moors, the remnants of the 1915 and 1935 World's Exhibition, El Prado is a place for postcards with Paintings of San Diego. 02 of 10 TripSavvy/Kathleen Messmer It's a pretty obvious choice - when you're in San Diego, you visit a San Diego zoo. But the zoo is one of the largest in the world, with one of the largest and most unique collections of animals and plants found anywhere. Exhibits and enclosures for animals are innovative, especially Elephant Odyssey, Lost Forest and Polar Land. And, of course, there are giant pandas. This only gives you a reason to check out the San Diego Zoo. 03 out of 10 Mark Liu/Flickr/CC BY-SA 2.0 If you were at the San Diego Zoo, then you're more likely to have noticed a large carousel and miniature railroad outside the zoo plaza entrance. The 1910 Balboa Park Carousel are animals, and all but two pairs are original with hand-carved European craftsmanship. Also original are hand-painted murals surrounding the top of the carousel and the music of a military band. This carousel is one of the few in the world that still offers a brass game for anyone who takes a 5-minute drive. The miniature Balboa Park railway takes 3 minutes, 1/2 miles across four acres of Balboa Park. The train, operated by the San Diego Zoo's Department of Transportation, is a model of the G16 - now a rare antique with as many as fifty currently remaining. 04 out of 10 When you walk through a stretch of El Prado of Balboa Park, you'll notice first Lily Pond and then an interesting la grille of the botanical building. In fact, the view of the botanical building with Lily's pond in the foreground is one of the most photographed scenes in Balboa Park. The historic building, built for the 1915-16 exposition, alongside the adjacent Lily Pond, is one of the largest structures in the world. Inside you will find more than 2,100 permanent plants featuring fascinating collections of cicasdes, ferns, orchids, other tropical plants and palm trees. And don't forget to check out bog meaty plant. Go to 5 from 10 below. 05 out of 10 Cat Dolphin/Getty Images If you wander along the vatoired path of Balboa Park near the site of an old naval hospital, you can check out some fierce competitors in badminton, table tennis, and volleyball. The Balboa Park Activity Center is a 38,000-square-foot multipurpose gymnasium built to accommodate those sports that basketball-centric municipal gym through a fleet of bulls. The award-winning Balboa Park Sports Centre is surrounded by scenic landscaping, public art and spacious outdoor spaces. 06 of 10 Betsy Malloy Photography Address 1649 El Prado Contemporary and Contemporary Art and Dynamic, San Diego, CA 92101, USA Phone +1 619-696-0199 This list intentionally does not include Balboa Park because they are such famous monuments. Except maybe this one: The San Diego Model Railway Museum. The museum does not always notice visitors heading to the Natural History Museum or the Navy Science Center. But if you want to see something cool, you want to make a detour here. At 28,000 square feet, the museum is the world's largest operating model of a railway museum. This unique museum contains four huge scales and model layouts built by individual clubs that depict the South West railroads on the scale of O, HO and N. In addition, the San Diego Motor Railroad Museum has a train gallery for games with an interactive Lionel layout for children and a hope lighting theater. 07 of 10 Address San Diego, CA 92101, USA If you've ever been to the west side of 6th Avenue of Balboa Park, near Cabrillo bridge, you might notice a gathering of people dressed in all white rolling on a sleek, flat lawn. This, my friends, is the San Diego Lawn Bowling Club hosting matches. Organized in 1932 with five member members- member members of the San Diego Lawn Bowling Club still stronger with active members. Club membership is open to anyone interested in the game. And the level of involvement of the club can range from playing in an occasional club social game to participating in club tournaments to competition in high-level regional and national competitions. Sitting and watching games is very soothing, but at the same time, you realize that there is a level of skill involved. And if your curiosity is such that you want to try lawn bowling, club members are happy to give public lessons. 08 of 10 Herb Neufeld/Flickr Balboa Park's House of Pacific Relations Internal Cottages represent and promote peaceful education and cultural exchanges of the public. 32 groups, delivered in historical 1935 Exposition cottages, promote multicultural goodwill and understanding through educational and cultural programs. Every Sunday, during the year, if you wander through the cottage complex between the organ pavilion and the Air and Space Museum, you can learn something or two foreign countries during an event or presentation. Go to 9 from 10 below. 09 out of 10 Travis Riegel Lucas Hornung/Flickr/Creative Commons Many people don't understand or just forget that Balboa Park extends beyond Park Boulevard east through Florida Canyon. You won't find museums or theaters here, but you'll find plenty of recreational opportunities at morley field sports complex. Frisbee golf? Track cycling? Tennis? Everything found here. This complex is located on Texas and Upas streets in the northeast corner of the park. There are 4 sports fields (one lighting), a 1.2-mile jog, and an 18-station fitness course. 10 of 10 Richard Cummins / Getty Images tucked between the San Diego Zoo and The Natural History Museum is a great place to just sit and enjoy the art and crafts taking place. It is a unique courtyard of art shops called Spanish Village Art Center. Thirty-seven working art studios/galleries host more than two hundred independently juries of local artists, sculptors, metalsmiths, jewelry designers, clay artists, band artists, photographers, printmakers, fiber artists, basket weavers, mixed media artists, glass artists and many others. Historic buildings with Spanish tiles, colorful patio tiles and working artist studios make for a very creative setting. Option.
